Speaker at Brotherhood Banquet at Christian Church Discusses Government

VOLSTEAD ENFORCING

Declares Great Chunks of Referendum May Prove Indigestive to Busy Man

"I am a great believer in democracy," said Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe, principal speaker at the Brotherhood banquet at the Christian church Tuesday evening, "but when I consider volumnous books of descriptive amendments that are coming up at the next election and with which the people of this state are supposed to familiarize themselves, I wonder if our democracy is not being overdone. There is entirely too much in this pamphlet for the ordinary man, who is expected to earn a living for his family, to assimilate. I am a great believer in the referendum, but when they hand it to us in great chunks like this, and when some man or set of men, year after year and time after time, continually hammer, hammer, hammer us with their pet theory, as they are doing with this single tax proposition, it looks as though it is being worked a little too hard."

Judge Bledsoe confined himself entirely to the explaining of several of the amendments that will be on the November ballot. The first proposed law considered, and to which was given considerable time was Amendment No. 2, generally known as the Wright law.

"The purpose of this law is to show that California stands firmly behind the government of the United States," he said, "and is not a 'piker.'

"After fifty years the American people have come to the conclusion that the liquor traffic ought to be obliterated from our midst," he said. "Whether it is generally believed or not I think the 18th amendment law was brought about largely by the heads of the railroads of the country, decreeing that any employes on their roads seen drunk or even in a saloon, were subject to instant dismissal. From the railroads this belief has spread throughout the country.

"The Volstead law is binding upon every citizen of California, and the Wright law will not add to our responsibility in this connection. It will only assist in the enforcement of the measure.

"There are places or at least one place where the eighteenth amendment is being enforced in California and if you don't believe me come down to my court any day. I have not waited for the Wright law to be passed. So long as the eighteenth amendment is a part of the constitution of this country it will be enforced in my court."

The speaker then took up the amendments having to do with the formation of the Osteopathic and Chiropractic boards of examiners. He gave voice to a bitter denunciation of the proposed anti-vivisection law, which is amendment No. 28 on the ballot.

"This proposed law is a direct blow against the health and welfare of mankind," he said. "Animal experimentation in a humane manner is being carried on now, and the animals are not being mistreated. I believe that the life of one human being is worth more than all the cats and dogs that have been in the world since the beginning of time."

The single tax amendment and the water and power act were taken up and discussed at length, the speaker giving his reasons for being against both of these measures.

"My citizenship in my country is the greatest thing in this world to me," said the speaker in conclusion. "I want to hold up the standards of my nation and to do everything I can to raise the standards of living. I want to stand by my nation even to death and to ever uphold the flag of freedom."

Judge Bledsoe was introduced by Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the Glendale Presbyterian church, who was previously presented to the gathering by Retiring President Garnsey.

The activities of the evening were started by an elaborate beef steak dinner, which was served by the ladies of the church, just prior to which Rev. Clifford A. Cole, pastor, pronounced the blessing on the repast.

Following the repast, the annual election of officers was held, this resulting in the following selections being made:

President, George D. McDill; first vice president, R. F. Kitterman; second vice president, James H. Garnsey; secretary, W. B. Kirk; treasurer, George Daugherty.

In his retiring speech, ex-President Garnsey pled with the incoming president to uphold the standards of the organization which are a clean Glendale, a constant fight against intoxicating liquors of all kinds, against the selling of cigarettes to boys, opposition to pool rooms in Glendale, and against dancing, especially in the high and grammar schools.

In his response, Mr. McDill stated that he would do everything in his power to uphold all of these lofty ideals and that he expected the support of every member of the organization.

A male quartet from the Methodist church consisting of Dr. P. O. Lucas, first tenor; Paul Butterfield, second tenor; Howard Butterfield, first bass; Dr. Raymond Lusby, second bass, who favored the company with several selections. They sang "Barnyard Melodies," and "My Lassie," after which they sang as an encore, "I Need No Stars to Guide Me."

Harry A. James then amused the company with one of his original monologues.

A vote of thanks was given to Judge Bledsoe for his remarkable address, after which Rev. E. E. Ford, pastor of the Glendale Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

HENRY PURRIER BEARS CHARMED LIFE

Shot by Bandits Two Years Ago, Is Assaulted by Fleeing Murderers in Jail

Henry M. Purrier, of Burbank, formerly of Glendale, when he was a constable of Burbank township and attached to Judge Harry Miller's court, seems to bear a charmed life. More than two years ago he was shot four times by auto bandits in a Burbank garage holdup, when Normand, night watchman was killed. It was supposed Purrier was fatally wounded, but he made a game fight for life and after many weeks of suffering, he won. As a deputy sheriff in charge of the county jail keys, he was set upon yesterday by the three escaping murderers, Wilson, Ward and Singola, and fearfully beaten about the head, also brutally kicked on body and legs by the desperadoes. He was threatened by all three of the escaping criminals, who pointed guns at him, but he fought them till knocked out, grappling Wilson and attempting to throw him down. Frightful gashes, requiring many stitches to close, were cut in his head, but despite these and the many body bruises, he pluckily declared last night that he was all right and would be at work again in a day or two. He is now at his home, 826 Tujunga avenue, Burbank.

COVINA MIDGETS DEFEATED BY GLENDALE

The Glendale high school midgets yesterday administered a crushing defeat to the Covina lightweights in the first league game of the season, played on Moyse field. The score of 37 to 0 is merely the official result of the game. The Covina boys were outclassed in every feature of the game. Glendale was robbed of two touchdowns by the time keeper's whistle. At the end of both the first and last half the local boys were within ten yards of the goal line.

Glendale kicked off to Covina at 4:15 P. M. Covina ran the oval back to the fifty yard line and lost it through a fumble. After making their yardage in four successive runs, Roberts half carried the ball twenty yards for a touchdown. It came in less than four minutes after the kickoff.

White, fullback, crossed the line twice in the second quarter.

He received a Covina punt and ran it forty yards for the first score of the quarter.

The visitors began to show signs of life in the third round and successfully held the local midgets four times on their one yard line and thus saved another touchdown from being scored. However Roberts received their punt and scored again.

The Covina boys practically gave up the fight in the final chapter and made only feeble attempts to stop the fleet Roberts and White. Roberts evaded the opposing players successfully enough to score twice. For the first time during the game the Glendale squad was able to convert their touchdown. Glen Roberts, quarterback, who substituted for La Frenchie placed a beautiful drop kick squarely between the uprights.

The spectacular running of Roberts, White and Schuler were features of the game.

The lineup: Glendale: McIver, L. E., Monroe, L. T., Morrison, L. G., Jeter, C., McAllister, R. E., Searle, R. T., Putman, R. G., W. Bobberts, L. H., Schuler, R. H., White, F., FaFrenchie, Q.

Covina:

Megaphones for the rooters were furnished by Desmond's and brought good results. The grandstand was filled to capacity and every spectator had one of the megaphones.

"Visit Your Laundry Week," will be observed in Glendale from October 24 to 27, inclusive. The managers of the laundries of Glendale believe they have the cleanest and most efficient plants in this section of the country and they are setting aside "Laundry Week" so that they can demonstrate this fact to their customers and friends.

A proclamation urging the people to visit the laundries between these dates was issued by Mayor Robinson of Glendale, this morning. It reads as follows:

Proclamation

WHEREAS the modern laundry has become an important factor for cleanliness, sanitation, and health in our community, and

WHEREAS this institution has bought to many homes a service which has banished from the household much of the old time drudgery, and

WHEREAS the laundries of this city have thrown open their doors to the public during the week of October 24-27, in observance of America's second national "Visit Your Laundry Week," and

WHEREAS it is to the interest of everyone to become familiar with the conditions under which our family linens are laundered, and to assist in giving all possible publicity to methods which vitally concern so many homes.

THEREFORE, I, Spencer Robinson, as mayor of the City of Glendale, do respectfully urge that every citizen, who finds it convenient, participate in "Visit Your Laundry Week."

Given under my hand and corporate seal this 18th day of October, A. D., 1922.

SPENCER ROBINSON,
Mayor of the City of Glendale.

ROBERTSON'S COOK INSISTS UPON WORKING

Requires Police Persuasion to Keep Him from Sticking to It

As a rule cooks are only too anxious to be discharged, but W. M. Robertson of 526 South San Fernando road has a "fryer" who simply will not stay fired.

Monday, Robertson tied a little ticket to said cook who went away, after which all was peace and quiet. Early yesterday morning, however, the fireworks started again. The cook returned and demanded that he be rehired. When the proprietor of the place refused to put him on the payroll again, he got real mean and used some powerful language, finally threatening to shoot up the joint. The arrival of the police put an end to the performance.

Two Assemblies at Glendale High

Today two assemblies will be held at Glendale High, which will be addressed by candidates for the office of secretary of assemblies. The election will take place tomorrow. ANNEXATION ELECTION TO BE CALLED

Casa Verdugo to Be Asked to Decide Upon Entering City

PETITIONS COMPLETED

Chamber of Commerce Hears of Result of Efforts to Interest District

The call for the election for the annexation of Casa Verdugo will probably be made by the Glendale city council at its meeting Thursday night. The work of securing the names on the petition asking the council to call the election, has been completed, according to a report made by Roy L. Kent, chairman of the annexation committee of the chamber of commerce at the forum meeting of that organization Tuesday. It was further announced that the petition has already been presented to the council.

That he expected to be ready sometime tomorrow to state definitely that the electrification of the Glendale avenue proposition has been put over, was the assertion made by J. P. Hayselden, chairman of the combined railroad committee. Everything is progressing as nicely as it possibly can, according to Mr. Hayselden, and there is a possibility of the railroad company beginning actual work next week.

"The matter of cheaper fares over the Pacific Electric line between Glendale and Los Angeles, is practically at a standstill," says Jesse Smith, chairman of the cheaper fares committee. "It is in the hands of the supreme court and the committee can do nothing until this matter has been finally settled."

Secretary Rhoades announced that a meeting of the San Fernando Valley chamber of commerce will be held in Glendale next Tuesday evening at the local chamber's headquarters. There will be a dinner, after which there will be a program and speeches.

At yesterday's forum meeting Attorney Bert Woodard was present and very briefly and capably reviewed the various amendments that will be voted on in California next month.

House Mover Is Needed by Schools

Things are certainly moving in Glendale. Even the houses have joined the migration. Business Manager Black of the board of education, speaking of the board's decision some ten days ago to move a bungalow classroom from Columbus to Pacific avenue campus to relieve congestion there, reports he has been negotiating with all the local house-movers about getting it transferred and has not yet found anyone who will consider the job. All say they are booked up for at least three weeks ahead.

Miss Helen Tupper Appointed Nurse

On the recommendation of its teachers' committee, composed of Mesdames A. A. Barton and Arthur C. Brown, the board of education has appointed as school nurse, Miss Helen S. Tupper of 1005 East California avenue, this city. It will be her duty to make such physical examinations of school children as the board deems wise, but subject to the wishes of the parents.

School Principals to Hold Meeting

Today principals of the twelve city scholos under the jurisdiction of the Glendale board of education will meet at 3:30 p. m. at the headquarters of the board, 107½ South Brand. Reports will be made in regard to present school enrollment and matters affecting the interests of the schools will be discussed.

PRACTICE SOCCER GAME

A practice game of soccer ball was played by Wilson Avenue Intermediate and Glendale Intermediate Tuesday afternoon on Wilson's field. The score was 3 to 0 in favor of Wilson Avenue.

Wilson Intermediate has three classes and a schedule is being made up for teams from each of the classes, viz., seniors, intermediates and midgets, which will play teams from Glendale Avenue Intermediate and Eagle Rock.

HARRY GIRARD BREAKS HIP AGAIN

Sad News Comes as Shock to Glendale Admirers of Singer

The sad news that Harry Girard, the well known singer of Glendale, who suffered a broken hip about two months ago, had again broken that member, reached the office of the Glendale Prses this morning. This news will doubtless cast a shadow on the people of Glendale, all of whom love Harry for his many wonderful qualities.

A mammoth testimonial will be given for Harry at the Morosco theatre in Los Angeles on the afternoon of Thursday, October 24. This will include a performance of Abe's Irish Rose," and also selections by many of the leading motion picture stars. Tickets to this event will be $2 each and those wishing to attend this event will have to speak early, as reservations are going like "hot cakes." Harry has hundreds of friends in Los Angeles and the surrounding cities and these are making a regular scramble for admission coupons. It is desired that Glendale be well represented at this performance. To do this local residents will have to buy early.

BUILDING PERMITS POINT TO SIX MILLION YEAR

Totals Yesterday Reached $42,450, Bringing Figure to $5,128,044

A greater valuation of building permits have been issued in Glendale thus far in 1922 than during the entire year of 1921, and there is still two months and a half to go before 1923 comes bouncing in.

The permits isued yesterday totaled $42, 450, these bringing the total for the year up to $5,128,044, against $5,099,663 for the entire year of 1921.

"Looks like things is slowin' up in Glendale—what?"

Judging from these figures it would appear as though Glendale is going to hang up a record this year that will be extremely hard to surpass in the future. That's what the boosters of Glendale said last year, but still this year is topping the efforts of 1921 by a large margin, and she is still going strong.

The present indications are that Glendale will build to the extent of at least six and half million during 1922, this estimate being exclusive of the permit for the new hotel which is going up at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue. With the hotel permit the amount should reach the $7,000,000 mark.

The building fever has taken hold of the people of Glendale.

The folks here see the hordes coming from all directions and they are doing what they can to prepare for their arrival.

Listen what J. A. Lucas, a local real estate operator, said about the housing situation in Glendale this morning:

"There is little danger of Glendale being overbuilt so far as dwellings are concerned. The newcomers are arriving and they simply must have some place to live. A year ago a great cry went up that Glendale was overbuilding in the home line—that with construction work continuing at its unusual rates rents and prices for homes would drop way down. These predictions were incorrect. There are fewer homes for rent today than there were two months ago, and the homes are being occupied as rapidly as they are being constructed. The growth of Glendale depends on the number of homes that are constructed in the future, for newcomers will locate here just as rapidly as there are places for them to hang their hats."

LEGION TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR BONUS BILL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18.—The American Legion convention today instructed its national officers to continue the fight for the adjusted compensation bill until it is enacted into law.

The convention adopted unanimously and without debate a joint report of its resolutions and legislative committee, recommending this policy.

No criticism of President Harding or the administration for killing the previous bonus bill was made.

The New York delegation seconded the resolution.

JURY EXONERATES BLANCHARD OF CHARGE

Declares He Was Not Guilty of Reckless Driving on Broadway

A verdict of "not guilty" was rendered by twelve Glendale citizens whose duty it was to state whether or not W. T. Blanchard of 803 East Windsor road, was guilty of reckless driving on Broadway the other day. The trial took place yesterday morning in Judge Lowe's court at 10 o'clock.

The feature of the trial was that Blanchard represented himself, while a lawyer from the district attorney's office conducted the prosecution.

WEST SIDE FOLKS OPPOSED OPENING OF PATTERSON

In regard to the meeting of the West Glendale Improvement association on Monday night, it was stated in Tuesday's paper that only three or four were against the opening of Patterson avenue. This was an error. It should have read that only three or four were in favor of the opening and they were the large land owners in that part of the city.

TRASKER DROVE RECKLESSLY

Grover Trasker, of Los Angeles, who was arrested at the corner of San Fernando road and Colorado on a charge of reckless driving recently, was fined $50 yesterday, when he appeared before Judge Lowe. In addition Mr. Trasker is compelled to pay for the damage done to the car with which his machine collided.

The home of George W. Dixon, 318 Mira Loma, was robbed last night at about 6:30 o'clock, and a quantity of valuables taken. Mr. Dixon left his home for a few minutes to go to a neighbor's home, and when he returned the thief was in the house. The thief started out the back door and Dixon gave chase. He followed the fellow for about a block, where he lost track of him. Police searched the neighborhood, but no trace of the thief could be found.

PYTHIANS STAGE BIG RECEPTION

Supper Served for 400 at the Castle at Park and Brand

PATROL IN PARADE

William Myers, Grand Prelate, Addresses the Organization

Tuesday evening was a big night for Knights of Pythias of this city who entertained the D. O. K. K. band and patrol of Alborak Temple, Los Angeles, with a banquet, served in the lodge hall at Park and Brand, at which covers were laid for about 400.

Preceding the dinner the band and patrol accompanied by local knights paraded Brand from Park to Wilson, stopping by the way to play for the entertainment of the interested crowds.

Following the banquet was a program of after-dinner speeches, the chief orator being William Myers, grand prelate of Knights of Pythias, and one of the past royal visors of the D. O. K. K. An address was also made by Past Royal Visor McClure.

The D. O. K. K.s are an advanced order of Knights of Pythias and bear about the same relation to it that the Shriners do to other orders of Masonry. Every six months they hold a "Ceremonial." The next one is to be held at Long Beach November 18, and this method was taken to advertise it and secure members in Glendale. It was effective enough to secure 15 candidates for membership. Such gatherings as took place Tuesday evening are called by the D. O. K. K.s "Tiger Meets."

Next Tuesday evening the local lodge will put on the rank of Knight for three candidates. Several applications for membership were received at the meeting last night.

SARAZEN WINNING WORLD'S GOLF TITLE BEFORE GOING UNDER KNIFE

This photograph was made while Gene Sarazen, the youthful winner of the American open golf championship, was playing Walter Hagen, British open champion, for the unofficial championship of the world. Sarazen defeated Hagen, although he complained of a "stitch in the side" when they began to play the final 36 holes of their 72-hole match. Within 24 hours after his victory his appendix was removed at a hospital at Yonkers, N. Y. The photograph shows Sarazen, at the left, with Hagen.

Walla Walla Claims To Have Oldest Mule

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Oct. 17.—Much has been written and perhaps sung about the nation's oldest man, but nothing has been said about the animal said to be the country's oldest mule. Jessie, aged 33 autumns, flicks an indignant paint brush tail and demands justification.

Some people claim Jessie to be not only the oldest mule in the United States, but the oldest mule living. It is a popular fancy that mules, like lion tamers and human flies, do not live to a very great age. Unable to be worked to death, they are usually killed, it is claimed, by enraged men who have been caressed by iron-clad hoofs.

Jessie is of Missouri stock, than which, as far as mule stock is concerned, there is none whicher. The federal government brought her here for use at Fort Walla Walla back in 1893. She was bought by the state for work in the penitentiary when the government abandoned the fort in 1910.

The mule Jessie is an animal of impeccable character, and the gray hairs on her fetlocks command the highest respect. Not because the hairs are gray, necessarily, but because they are on her fetlocks. Her connection with the state penitentiary is no reflection upon her standing as a citizen of the animal kingdom.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH
Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

The rapid increase of real estate values in the Pacific-Southwest during the twentieth century has raised a serious question in the minds of many students of the realty market as to the factors creating present prices and their probable future tendencies.

The Research Department of The First National Bank of Los Angeles, the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank and the First Securities Company has made an analysis of this situation, paying particular attention to the fact that the market value or price of a piece of real estate is a combination of two distinct elements; one being the actual intrinsic worth of the land, resulting from its productivity, and the other the speculative value, based upon its probable future production, either in the form of direct production of agricultural or mineral products, or in the form of services performed by the land because of its location close to centers of population, railroad connections, harbor frontage, etc.

With this in mind it was pointed out that the value of real property in Los Angeles has increased, for instance, more than $800,000,000 in the last twenty years, or approximately 800 to 900 per cent. Very similar increases were evidenced in a majority of Pacific-Southwest communities.

That this is not abnormal is evidenced by the fact that the production of commodities in the Pacific-Southwest has kept pace with the increase in realty values. For example, the citrus fruit shipments of California increased from approximately 17,000 carloads per annum to 60,000 carloads during this period, the price having increased sufficiently to maintain the ratio between increasing value of land and production.

The walnut crop has increased in a similar manner during this period, from 5,000 tons per annum to in excess of 25,000 tons. The cotton industry, which was nonexistent in 1900, now produces from 150,000 to 200,000 bales of cotton per annum in this territory. Similar examples of increasing agricultural production could be given indefinitely.

In the case of mineral production the increase has been proportionate; the annual output of petroleum having increased from less than 4,000,000 to in excess of 100,000,000 barrels during this period.

Industry has expanded in the same manner; the value of the annual output of manufactured products in this territory has increased about 2000 per cent during the period under review.

These few examples show that the general business of the Pacific-Southwest has increased as rapidly as have realty values. It is, however, pointed out that during the twentieth century there have been several times when the increase in the speculative value of real estate tended to proceed more rapidly than the increase in the actual intrinsic value. As a result there have been periods of dull real estate markets while the intrinsic value was still being built up toward the market value established by too rapid capitalization of speculative values.

MUSICIANS VISIT OLIVE VIEW HOSPITAL

Little Party of Glendale Artists Sing and Amuse Patients at Sanitarium

Missionary work is not all done in foreign fields. Some was done right here in this valley last Sunday, when a company consisting of Mayor Robinson, City Manager Reeves, Barry A. James, Bill Bode and Herbert Henning went up to the Olive View sanitarium, just north of San Fernando.

These entertainers were received with open arms and when they departed they were forced to promise they would come back again soon.

The mayor gave several of his delightful vocal selections, and Harry James cheered the unfortunate people with a number of his humorous stories and original monologues. Manager Reeves carried a cheering message in the form of a few remarks and the instrumental music by Bode and Henning, struck a sympathetic chord in the hearts of the inmates.

After the Olive View program the entertainers visited the El Retiro sanitarium, where the women are located. The selections were repeated and each number was greatly appreciated.

TWO AMERICANS IN RECITAL AT LOS ANGELES

The opening concert of the Philharmonic Artist Course is scheduled for Tuesday evening, Oct. 31, and will be a joint song recital by two Americans—Florence Macbeth coloratura soprano and Royal Dadmun, baritone, to be at Philharmonic Auditorium.

Both these artists are typically American in birth, training and experience. Miss Macbeth made her debut with The Hague Orchestra later appearing in London where she was engaged by the late Campanini to return to America as member of the Chicago Opera Company, of which she has ever since been a member.

The career of Royal Dadmun reads more like that of a well regulated businessman than an artist. His training has been entirely on this side and has brought him to public notice via church choir, oratorio, orchestra soloist and concert stage. He represents most ably the new era in men singers who, while following music as a profession, are able business executives, participants in the favorite sports of the country, and who, over and above all, believe in and promote songs in English. He has included the Salt Water Ballads, one or two Negro spirituals, and a group of translated old Italian and Russian songs.

These artists will be the first in the Evening Philharmonic Course, which offers during the season the most world-famous recital stars, including Toscha Seidel, Russian violinist, Nov. 14; Isadora Duncan, the American dancer with an international vogue, with symphony Orchestra, Nov. 28.

Louis Graveure, baritone, will be the fourth artist Dec. 14, and after the first of the year Mme. Emma Calve, who last year in London, New York and Boston staged a phenomenally sucesful "come back," returns Jan. 6.

The Russians will be represented by three of their greatest stars; Feodor Chaliapin, Feb. 6, Mischa Elman Jan. 23, and Rosa Raisa, dramatic soprano, Apr. 24.

Two pianists of diametrically different type yet each equally interesting, will be Arthur Schnabel Feb. 27 and Alfred Cortot Mar. 20.

The English and Canadian representatives will be Lenora Sparkes, soprano from Covent Garden and the Metropolitan, Mar. 6, and Edward Johnson, tenor from the Chicago Opera and now a member of the Metropolitan Opera, April 3.

Mrs. Garfield Jones of 920 East California avenue, returned home Tuesday, after spending several weeks visiting the national parks of this state. Mr. Jones is an employe of the public service department at the city hall and will return to his work again.

Mr. J. W. McCoy of 218 North Maryland, returned Tuesday from a business trip to San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cleveland of 417 West Lomita avenue had as their house guests last week, Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Lovejoy of Roscoe, Ill. Mr. Lovejoy was a judge at the Riverside fair.

Truths in Epigram

Our wrangling lawyers are so litigious and busy here on earth, that I think they will plead their clients' causes hereafter—some of them in hell.—Robert Burton 1576-1640

Herostratus lives that burnt the temple of Diana; he is almost lost that built it.—Sir Thomas Browne, 1605-1682.

PLEADING FOR THE INDIAN

A woman of the Sioux tribe, if such title still is retained, is lecturing in this state. She is a person of discernment and culture, speaking only the truth, but with a moderation that shows restraint. The whole truth, bluntly stated, would be a shocking indictment of the entire course of this nation towards the Indians. Natives of the land that later became the United States, almost from earliest contact with the whites, have been robbed. With fair treatment, it is probable there would have been no friction. Such men as Penn deemed it fitting to cheat the Indians out of their lands under pretense of purchase. Swapping a string of blue beads for an acreage large enough for a state, was not a process of legitimate barter, but of swindling. The policy of dishonesty inaugurated at an early day, seems to have survived. Always the Indian has been given what in private transaction would have led to a call for the police. His lands have been taken at the pleasure of the whites who desired to use them. Habitually he has been robbed by rascally agents. At times he has displayed treachery, but it was in answer to unnumbered cases of treachery of which he had been the victim. With decent treatment he might have been erected before this into worthy citizenship. He remains, for the most part, a helpless ward with an untrustworthy or at least, unthinking guardian.

The Indian woman merits quoting. This she says: "It is useless to talk of civilizing and educating the Indian unless you first keep his soul and body together. A hundred years from now it will be too late to save American honor, when the world asks, as it surely will, 'What did you do with the Aborigines? Where have the Indians gone?' It will be too late then to do anything; they will all be gone.

"Let the American people exercise their heart power and demand that their Indians, their own little people, shall have citizenship, American privileges, the rights of the ballot, the right that every child shall be educated, and the poor and needy cared for."

And what is the answer to all this?

SELECTING JUDGES

All intelligent citizens realize the importance of the courts. It is singular, then, that so many of them refrain from voting on such a vital subject as the personnel of the bench. The matter is in their hands to decide. They are quick enough to protest if any tribunal in its conduct and decisions appears lacking in propriety of method, or soundness of opinion. But they do not blame themselves.

It happens that judges of the highest class, candidates for re-election, often are handicapped. It is necessary that they should have publicity. They shrink, on principle, from advertising themselves. Often they are so engaged with their work that it would be impossible for them to enter a definite campaign. They are forced to depend upon the reputation they have won, and to believe that the activity of friends will be helpful.

Some judges deal with a class of cases that keeps their names almost continually in print. The public feels acquainted with them, and if they are candidates, is likely to support them, perhaps quite regardless of merit. The choice of judges has been known to be accidental, a candidate winning because of the similarity of his name to that of another judge of admitted attainment. While these things are happening, a large proportion of voters deposit ballots without having marked one of the judicial aspirants. This is a degree of carelessness much to be deplored.

Justice Sloane of the supreme court, one of the most useful members, forms an illustration of the difficulties under which a candidate of the highest type may find himself. He is a jurist of assured ability and fine character. He is learned in the law, with keen discernment of the spirit of the law. Personally he is modest, his attitude marked by dignity but not reserve. It is essential that jurists of his caliber be on the supreme bench. To go about extolling their own qualities of excellence, would be a repugnant task. The duty of keeping Justice Sloane where he is, is manifest, and yet it is a duty, performance of which rests with the voters. The south, in part actuated by pride, will favor Justice Sloane, since were he defeated, there would remain on the supreme bench only one from this end of the state.

The campaign of Judge Hahn of the superior court is in many respects parallel. He has made an admirable record. He has devoted himself ably and constantly to the interests of the public. The cases before him have been handled most capably, and his decisions have won approval. But the cases have not been spectacular. They have dealt with issues rather than with individuals. Reporters in quest of sensation have not been drawn to his courtroom. Judge Hahn has the popular respect, the endorsement of bench and bar, but a campaign of banners and bands is not being waged in his behalf. Nevertheless, to overlook his claims, to fail to support them at the polls, would be a grave error.

REGULATING CITY AFFAIRS

So far as sentiment has found expression, it is all against turning the management of city affairs over to any state board. It is clear that the people of a city know how they want to be governed, and that they are more competent to govern themselves than it could be possible for a distant body, even of most highly respectable gentlemen, to be. The plan of placing the public utilities of the cities under the control of any authority other than that of the citizenry, is being strongly condemned. A municipality elects a mayor, or elects a commission, that in turn names a manager. If any element in local government fails to perform the duty expected of it, a quick remedy is in the hands of the voters. In the matter of granting franchises, and of regulating traffic, none could serve so well as those familiar with local needs and available facilities. It could as reasonably be asked that the state select the crossing policeman, as that it interfere in any manner with the traffic that passes the crossing. There are many things properly within state jurisdiction. Doubtless the railroad commissioners, if asked about it, would assert that they have enough to do already. They do not yearn to take up problems concerning which they necessarily are ignorant, and upon which they could not give judgment, without long preliminary study and much delay. At that, their findings might not please the persons affected by them, and might not be promotive of justice nor of community interests.

The board of directors of Pasadena have given one more inkling of the common belief in appealing for defeat of the propositions to denature municipalities and make them impotent wards of the state.

Einstein thinks he has set limits to space and time. There is no particular harm in his thinking so. His assertions fail, however, to carry conviction.

The halo a man sees on a girl's head during courtship is replaced by an expensive bonnet shortly after marriage.

MONSIEUR DE MOSCOW

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The public executioner in Paris used to be called Monsieur de Paris.

Under the old regime the job of headsman was hereditary, like all privileges, and descended from father to son. And the family which had this right was entitled to the blazon of Monsieur de Paris.

Dr. Frank Crane

The bolshevik paradise will stand for none of this hereditary nonsense. It will not admit the shameful survival of privilege.

According to a dispatch from Helsingfors we learn that the bolshevik government in Russia has taken measures to create at Moscow a school of executioners.

So doing, it has made another one of those gestures so striking to the imagination which illustrates with what solicitude and intelligence the paternal power of the proletariat is busy with the welfare of the people.

The announcement also states that a laboratory is placed at the disposal of the pupils.

In other words, the full benefit of science is to be placed at the disposition of the gentleman whose business it is to chop off the heads of criminals.

Thus we have another step toward the coming democracy; another indication that the gentlemen in charge of things in Russia are going to fashion a new world.

One can but wonder what sort of instruction the pupils in execution are going to receive.

Will there be practical exercises in decapitation?

Will there be autopsies and dissections in connection with the course in cephalotomy?

Will there be experiments in poisons and the culture of disease germs?

In fine, will we at last realize the dream of making murder a fine art?

Under the grateful influence of competition, the young laborers in the garden of capital punishment will doubtless discover a thousand and one new and ingenious ways to shorten the lives of those undisciplined citizens who refuse to believe in the autocracy of the proletariat.

Still, if we are going to have capital punishment, it might be just as well to have the matter attended to by experts. And it is perfectly understandable how if any one was going to have his head lopped off he would like to have it done in a neat and workman-like manner.

THE RIGHT WORD

QUERIES

"Effect"

G. Koch, Chicago, Ill.: "Will you kindly inform me which of the two words, effect or affect, should be used in the following sentences: 'The law went into (effect or affect)'; 'Try to (effect or affect) the sale of my property'; 'His death was the (effect or affect) of an accident'; 'Will you (effect or affect) this change'?; 'The victory was (effected or affected) by overwhelming numbers'?" Answer: The right word in each sentence is effect.

"Headquarters"

J. B. Jones, Sergeant-Major, Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.: "Which is the correct sentence: 'He will report to these headquarters'; or, 'He will report to this headquarters' Here is a stunner. See if you can answer the riddle, giving an example. Is there a sentence in the English language that can be spoken correctly from a grammatical standpoint, yet cannot be written correctly? There is such a one, and I will give it to you on request." Answer: All dictionaries give headquarters as plural, but note the following from Webster: "(but sometimes used as a n. sing.). I should say that these is the right word, but it is possible that the headquarters you have in mind may be singular in idea and, consequently, be treated grammatically as a singular noun. Unless you and I arrange to meet by appointment I do not see how you can convey to me the sentence you have in mind unless you do it in the following manner: In the English language there are three words pronounced like to; they are to, too and two. Is this the sentence you had in mind?

"Alright"

J. Marden, New York City: "I would appreciate it very much if you would print in your column the definition and uses of the word 'alright'." Answer: "Alright is not in the dictionary, except that it is found in the New English Dictionary, where it is described as 'obs.', which means obsolete, out of use. The right phrase is all right.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A million dollars.

That is a thousand thousand.

If you had it, you could spend a thousand dollars a day for several years before you had exhausted it.

Of course, you could not spend a thousand dollars a day on yourself.

Unless you threw it away.

And that would not be spending it.

* * *

If you put it out at interest it would bring you fifty thousand dollars a year at five per cent.

Without turning a hand you would receive something more than four thousand dollars a month.

Over a hundred dollars a day.

And that is considerably more than you could spend and be healthy at it.

* * *

The expenditure of money is something more than a pleasure.

Or a convenience.

It is a responsibility.

And if your million dollars was invested at five per cent and you spent the interest, you would be spending the labor of twenty men at five dollars a day each.

In other words, it would take the labor profit of perhaps thirty or forty or fifty men to keep you going.

* * *

So we begin to see that capital has responsibility.

In addition to the convenience of it.

If the millionaires of the world merely put their funds out at interest, it would in a short time become a world of class and mass.

Which is a condition to be avoided.

* * *

But the intelligent possessor of wealth has usually interests in business.

He uses his money to enlarge fields of endeavor.

And in that way he affords opportunity for labor and skill and talent and genius to share in profit.

* * *

Which is a good thing.

But—

If you had a million dollars.

Presuming that you are not rich and have been struggling along.

And this money just dropped into your lap.

The banker sent you a letter and said it was ready for you and you could begin drawing checks as soon as you got your fountain pen filled.

Then—

What is the first thing you would do with your convenient and considerable income?

* * *

You have often declared that if you had a million dollars you would do this, that or the other.

Endow a hospital perhaps.

Help to feed the hungry.

Provide for the care and cure of sick children.

* * *

But that was when your million was in your imagination.

Now you have it.

All in hard cash and good securities.

Has your mind changed?

Would you build up a personal establishment in keeping with a million?

* * *

Or would you live along much the same, work with pretty steady energy, and use a share of your million to help other folks?

It would be a pretty good test of what was really in you after all.

It has been said that there are two pretty good tests of a man.

Prosperity and adversity.

* * *

So if you had that million you have dreamed of what would be the first move or impulse or desire?

To have the things you have long wanted?

Or to help do the things others have long needed?

Strictly Germ-Proof—By Arthur Guiterman

The Antiseptic baby and the Prophylatic Pup
Were playing in the garden when the Bunny gamboled up;
They looked upon the Creature with a loathing undisguised—
It wasn't Disinfected and it wasn't Sterilized.

They said it was a Microbe and a Hotbed of Disease;
They steamed it in a vapor of a thousand-odd degrees;
They froze it in a freezer that was cold as Banished Hope
And washed it in permanganate with carbolated soap.

In sulphurated hydrogen they steeped its wiggly ears;
They trimmed its frisky whiskers with a pair of hard-boiled shears;
They donned their rubber mittens and they took it by the hand
And elected it a member of the Fumigated Band.

There's not a Micrococcus in the garden where they play;
They bathe in pure iodoform a dozen times a day;
And each imbibes his rations from a Hygienic Cup—
The Bunny and the Baby and the Prophylactic Pup.

PLANT LICE CAUSE MINIATURE RAINFALL

Do not blame meteorology for the ten foot square "rainfall" that has been heralded from Alexandria, Va. Entomology explains it. Protesting at the fanciful explanations and the mystery that has been thrown about this phenomenon, Dr. W. J. Humphreys, professor of meteorological physics of the U. S. Weather bureau, declares that plant lice produce the supposed rain.

These insects are found on sycamore and other trees by the thousands. They are little brown mites, three-sixteenths to one-eighth of an inch long, which suck the sap from the leaves and squirt it out of their bodies. This secretion is the liquid that falls and appears to be rain.

The spot in Alexandria does not deserve the fame that it has achieved, Dr. Humphreys holds, as there are dozens of trees in Wasnington that are producing the same kind of "rain." Several of these are located on Pennsylvania avenue and are so plentiful with the sticky moisture that pedestrians avoid passing under their aphid-infected branches.

The liquid produced by plant lice is of a honey-dew consistency and stays on the pavement or ground much longer than would the same amount of rain water. It has been suggested that something of this sort made the famous manna of the Israelites in their flight through the wilderness from Egypt.

It is also declared absurd to explain the Alexandria "rain" as the exuding of moisture from a tree itself. Although there is a tree in South America which is said to do something of the kind, none of the trees of the Virginia city are of this species.

Rain seldom falls in a ground-wetting shower over an area of less than one square mile, although a few drops may fall over a much smaller area, says Dr. Humphreys. Even the falling of rain in one part of the District of Columbia and not in another is an extremely local condition.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DEMOCRATIC DIPLOMACY

[Chicago News]

Elihu Root discusses in the magazine, Foreign Affairs, the difficulties with which high-minded and peace-loving statesmen have to contend in this democratic age and points out the chief requisite for the success of popular diplomacy. That requisite is accurate and ample information in regard to foreign problems. Under autocracy, says Mr. Root, the danger to peace lies in selfish and sinister motives of rulers or ruling cliques; under democracy the danger is found in passion, antipathy and ignorance.

The newspapers and other educational agencies, therefore, should endeavor to give the great public facts and fair interpretations of facts as to foreign affairs. Demagogical, reckless appeals to hate and fear, to inbred bias, to race and national egotism and pride, Mr. Root points out, are now as serious a menace to peace and order among nations as slanders of the same criminal sort are to internal peace.

No legislation is possible, of course, that will prevent insulting and otherwise provocative writing directed against foreign nations but unprejudiced education is becoming more and more necessary if democratic diplomacy is to be fair, rational and conscientious.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

That the gland operation is anything but a fad remains to be demonstrated. To the layman, professing no intimate knowledge of human construction, it still seems absurd. As to the testimonials of the rejuvenated, they amount to nothing. There never was a quack nostrum that could not advertise its merits by pictures of "before and after taking," with enthusiastic endorsements from the physically redeemed. The gland process has not yet reached a stage at which the decrepit patient who undergoes it is not regarded as a pitiful joke. Such an operation, after the announcement of his engagement, was what wrote Harold McCormick of Chicago down as an ass, the writing being large and indelible.

HENRY JAMES

If the announced bestowal of youth has brought forward a new set of dupes, it also has been the basis of a novel form of crime. A Chicago man was kidnaped, drugged, and robbed by surgery of certain glands that he prized highly, and that he believes were of more use to himself than they could be to any cadaverous old roue for whose benefit they were filched. If the story of this assault is confirmed, or if there is possibility that such a story could be true, legislation covering formerly unthought-of conditions, will have to be enacted. The death penalty would be too mild, but unfortunately it constitutes the limit.

The rosy and rugged citizen, well muscled and active, needs protection. At present he cannot know when an operator with anaesthetic and scalpel is on his trail.

Yakima Indians up in Washington are protesting against the desecration of one of their burial mounds. Of twenty bodies that had been resting there, eighteen were taken away. The reason is not given. Perhaps science wanted some old bones to pore over. If the Yakima Indians had committed similar outrage in a cemetery of whites, they would have been considered a brutal and degraded lot.

The fact is plain that prohibition as applied to ships entering the ports of this country has reared a new set of problems. That there should be no wine on board a French ship while here, doubtless is as inexplicable to the French, as had the order applied to buttermilk. In 1842 Daniel Webster, as secretary of state, declared that a ship, no matter where it happened to be, was essentially a part of the land from which it came, and under the legal jurisdiction of the government prevailing at its home port. Times change of course, but there is great reluctance to change a precedent.

A woman stunt flyer was killed at Cleveland recently. She had ascended to a considerable altitude, and then climbed down a rope ladder depending from the airship, hanging to this swaying support by her teeth. Spectators had expected something tragic, or they would not have been there, the mere exhibtion of wanton folly not being very interesting without the logical sequel.

Out this way there is considerable interest in the Pacific coast baseball championship. The Pacific Coast league plays a good game. Probably any of the leading three teams of the western organization could have given the Giants a stiffer contest than they had with the Yanks. Many of the best of the eastern players were last year, or year before, playing in coast cities.

There is something singular about the Pacific pennant fight. San Francisco wins, with Vernon second, and Los Angeles third. After the struggle had narrowed so that the prize was between San Francisco and Vernon, Los Angeles began to play a class of ball that, begun earlier, would easily have procured and held first place.

It is not pleasing to notice the suggestion that Hindenburg be made president of Germany. He is not fit to be president of a republic, being wholly without sympathy with the purposes of such a form of government. As president, he would be a monarchist, imperfectly disguised.

The Greek army is said to have refused to leave Thrace, but of course the Greek army will leave Thrace. Its sense of acquisitiveness doubtless is strong, but the desire not to be spitted on bayonets is more potent. Since the allies have concluded to be neighborly with the Turks, and give them whatever they express a desire to have, the Greek army would not only have to defeat the Turks, but defy the allies; a large and impracticable program.

Readers of police news note that Joe Figelman has been arrested again on the charge of picking pockets. There is no evidence against him beyond the fact that two policemen saw him do the picking, arrested him, and found the booty on him. There have been many cases as strong as this against the active Joseph, but they don't mean anything. As fast as one case becomes of record, the accused is freed and resumes his vocation. At times a wonder arises that Los Angeles tolerates the presence of Figelman, but that it should make a pet of him is beyond all explanation.

General Mitchell says that the country needs twenty-four hundred airplanes for defense. Perhaps he can make congress believe this. At present, congress seems devoted to the notion that there is no need of any form of defense, and right merrily it knocks the army into a cocked hat, and seeks to throw the navy after it.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

My friend the piker says that Easy Money ruined him. He makes rather a good story of it. He tells, and can prove, that when he was hardly old enough to go into a barber shop without blushing he made money by the thousands and kept on making it for years.

"It came so easy," he says, "that I did not realize that I had had a wonderful run of luck. I thought I could make money whenever I needed it and as much as I wanted. So I formed all the bad habits I could—"

You know the plot. It was all the fault of Easy Money. Likewise I listened a few days ago to a hard-eyed old banker addressing a class of young men. I gathered that the only money he really values are the few dollars he made by placing his nose in acute juxtaposition to a grindstone when he was too young to know better. He not only did not refer affectionately, but he did not refer at all, to the many thousands of other dollars he has garnered since then, and not one of which could be tabbed as anything but the easiest sort of easy money.

It seems to me that the man who blames his downfall on Easy Money is sheltering in the poorest sort of a dugout. If by Easy Money he means Dishonest Money, then he pleads guilty at the outset. Thieves take dishonest money and only thieves, and most thieves get found out in the end. If he means the real Easy money—the sort one inherits or one gets by chance or is dumped on one through force of circumstances—then he is a weak-kneed sort of a sister if he blames his stumble on it.

Easy Money, provided it is honest money, is just as good as any other money. A dollar won by thinking a long way ahead is just as good as a dollar won by carrying a drummer's trunk. The dollars left by a dad have the same commodity value as the dollars gained by clerking behind a counter. Any money, easy or uneasy, is a pretty savage test of character, if there is enough of it. Many's the family that was happy and respected when they were moderately poor and which went to perdition on a wheelbarrow when they became immoderately rich.

But that isn't the fault of the money, any more than it is the fault of the road when a flawed axle breaks. If the flaw were not there the axle would not have broken.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

People were killed in this country from failing accidents of all kinds at the rate of 34 a day during 1920.

The greatest catch in the memory of the oldest fisherman, 250,000 mackerel, was recently brought into Frederickstad, Norway.

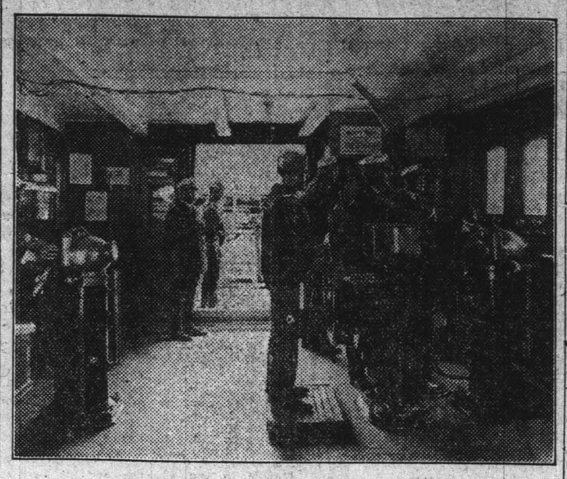
Equipment on Steamship Bridges Makes for Secure Ocean Voyages



Bridge of Steamship America

New York Of the thousands upon thousands of passengers who cross the Atlantic every year, very few are in the slightest way familiar with the steamship bridge. Most travelers know of the bridge simply as a place where the vessel's commander holds forth and from where the vessel is steered. As a matter of fact, the bridge is to the ship what the brain is to the human body.

Timid folk who hesitate about taking a sea trip would do well to know of the great many safety devices which are a part of the bridge equipment on the vessels of the United States Lines. With safety as their first consideration, the operators of the big American fleet of passenger vessels have been keen to take advantage of all equipment which will make every increased security.

One of the interesting safety devices which makes a decided appeal to the landlubber is the submarine signal. This device consists of two telephone receivers on the bridge, one of which is connected with an underwater microphone on the port side, and one with a microphone on the starboard side of the vessel. The submarine signal is used during heavy fog, and by its use the Captain is able to locate his position, and keep his ship in the proper course. The device comes into use when nearing shore. Lightships stationed off the coast of Europe and the United States sound an under-water bell which is detected by the microphones. When one microphone registers the sound lighter than the other, the Captain changes his course until both receivers sound equal in volume, and he then knows he is headed for the lightship. All lightships have individual signals. For instance, the lightship off Ambrose Channel, and which marks the entrance to New York harbor, sounds two bells, and after a brief interval, sounds two more bells. The first lightship to be picked up as a steamship nears Great Britain's shores, that of Daunt's Rock, sounds three bells.

Another ingenious instrument to be found aboard the vessels of the United States Lines, and which gives increased protection to the passengers is the fire detector. This device consists of a cabinet on the bridge which contains twenty-eight indicators, each of which is numbered. These indicators are directly connected through vacuum suction tubes with every freight and passenger compartment on the steamer. The slightest puff of smoke in any of the compartments is immediately registered by the device on the bridge, and in a jiffy the Captain and his crew may take action against the impending blaze. This mechanism is so delicate that a person striking a match close to the receiving end in the various compartments, gives the signal to the bridge.

The bridges of the United States liners are equipped with Sperry compasses which, operating on the gyroscopic principle, indicate true North. This compass is connected with the main compass in the engine room of the vessel, where the gyroscope is constantly operating. The gyroscopic compass overcomes many problems which confront the mariner with the old style compass which deviates from the true North in various circumstances. For instance, the magnetic compass is shown to deviate almost ten degrees as vessels enter the harbor at New York.

The steering of the vessel is accomplished through a Brown telemotor steering wheel. This is operated by hydraulic action with the aid of glycerine and water, and is connected with a steam motor which moves the rudder. The slightest pressure on the small steering wheels, through the hydraulic action, causes the big steam motor to act, and the giant rudder promptly responds.

Another interesting instrument to be found on the bridge of United States liners is the Kelvite sounding machine, through which soundings can be made which not only indicate the character of the ocean bed, but give the depth of the water. The machine consists of a motor and a drum, on which is wound 1800 feet of piano wire, on the end of which a sixty-pound lead weight is attached. At the bottom of the lead weight, in a depression, tallow is placed, and when this strikes the bed of the ocean, particles of sand or shell adhere to the tallow. By referring to his chart, the Captain can tell from the character of the particles brought to the surface and the depth indicated, his exact position.

Among the other interesting devices to be found on the bridge of the liners are the giant searchlights, port and starboard engine telephones, by which the navigator can communicate to the engine room below, his desire for speed or maneuvers. Then there is a device operated from the bridge by which all the water-tight doors throughout the vessel can be closed by the throwing of a switch. The water-tight compartment arrangement on such vessels as the President Roosevelt and the President Harding for instance, are such that when the compartments are closed the vessel might be cut in twain, allowing both halves to float with safety.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

THE VALUE OF MEAT

The woman who was swayed by the opinions of others to such an extent that she had no mind of her own wandered into a country doctor's office and sat down on a chair.

Looking up, the doctor closed the ledger he was sighing over, and pushed his spectacles up into his bushy white hair.

"Something," he said, "is worrying you."

"It's meat, doctor. You know what a hand my John is for his meat. Wants it on the table twice a day, and if all I read is true, meat is rank poison and not for food."

And the woman folded her cotton gloved hands in a black calico lap and gazed at the doctor sternly.

"Now, don't you worry about John," said the doctor, soothingly.

"Meat is as good food today as it ever was. It's all a question of temperance."

"Temperance?" and Mrs. Brown bobbed up shrilly. "Temperance? My John doesn't even look at alcohol, doctor. I don't know what you mean."

Temperance in Meat Eating

"I was speaking of temperance in the matter of eating meat, especially in this hot weather, "and the doctor regarded the first bluebottle of the season as it buzzed outside his well-screened office window.

"I suppose you know, Mrs. Brown, that the amount of food required by the human system varies under certain conditions such as sex, age, mode of life, and climate.

"People in cold countries require more fat than do those in tropical countries.

"A woman requires four-fifths a man's rations.

"A man working as hard as your John requires more meat and more food than you do, because your housework is light at present, and there are fewer demands upon your energy."

"But about meat, doctor," interrupted Mrs. Brown.

"The value of meat as a food depends upon the part of the animal from which it is taken," continued the doctor.

"The parts that work hardest in life, the legs and the neck of an animal, for instance, are toughest, but also most juicy. So we use them for soups.

Why Hind Quarters are Tender

"The parts that have worked least, the hind quarters, are tender, but less juicy. So we use these cuts for steaks and roasts. Meat from young animals is tender, but less nutritious than from older ones.

"Veal lacks salts, and therefore flavor, and is hard to digest. Mutton is fatter than beef, but the fat is largely stearin and less digestible than beef suet.

"Lamb contains a great deal of fat, and it is because of this fact that we always serve an acid pickle or relish with lamb, because the acid counteracts the effect of the fat. And pork—"

"John just loves pork," interrupted Mrs. Brown.

"Pork," continued the doctor, "is the least digestible of all meats. But my advice to you is, give John good meat, well cooked, and in moderation, and remember that hard working people require more food-fuel to renew their energy and strength than do those whose work is less strenuous."

PORTLAND TO HAVE MUSIC

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 16.—Music week will be ushered in in Portland by clashing of cymbals November 5.

Music week is an annual affair. It will be marked by top-notch concerts by local and imported talent. Artists whose names are a byword wherever music is known will perform for Portland folk. Local orchestras and singers are booked for nightly appearances, and every music instrument in the city will be uncased and the case chucked aside for seven days.

The feature of music week in Portland this year is the musicless day which precedes it. November 4 has been set aside for the observance of the effect on people when music is denied them. The common run of folk who ordinarily depend upon others for their musical entertainment will not be so entertained, and to make the silence more noteworthy such folks are urged to abstain from the use of their mechanical music producers for that one day. Saturday night, in Portland as elsewhere, is the big dance night. What foot-shakers will do without music, if they observe the city council mandate, is a mystery. They can't even whistle.

Early on the morning of Sunday, November 5, this harmonious silence will be broken by gentle church bells, which will be the signal for everything and everybody musical to tune up again. Dickens, who coined the best orchestral simile ever penned, should and perhaps will, be allowed to listen in on this tuning up after a day of idleness for delicate instruments. The dismissal wail as of a cosmic stomachache would reach the farthest star.

An American tourist in Yorkshire was very much interested in the "quaint" dialect of that section of England. He stopped to have a chat with an old Yorkshireman, who was busy cleaning some harness in the stable yard. Just then a butterfly settled on the stable door and the American exclaimed: "Pretty, ain't it? Now what do you call them here?" The old man made a deft shot at the butterfly with his cap. "Yon was a flutterbug," he said stolidly "but us chaps calls them flugs to save a bit of time."

INDIANS WOULD CLAIM TITLE TO N. Y.

ONEIDA, Wis., Oct. 17.—Legal battles will be begun shortly to recover for the "Six Nations" of Indians more than 6,000,000 acres of land in the heart of New York state valued at more than $2,000,000,000.

Oneida Indians at a meeting here appointed a committee of 22 of their number to raise the money needed for the fight and for further investigation of claims. Nelson Metoxea is chairman and Mrs. Laura Cornelius Kellogg secretary. The committee will work with those appointed from other tribes.

Mrs. Kellogg and Amos Baird represented the Oneidas in an investigation conducted in the east. They claimed at the meeting that if the land is recovered, it will be divided among approximately 50,000 persons, descendants of the "Six Nations."

The claim is based on the treaty of 1784 in which the United States government ceded 6,000,000 acres of land to the Six Nations. There was nothing in the treaty, however, to prevent Indians from selling the land. In a short time much of it had been sold to the state of New York and the Indians moved west and north, some to Canada, others to Wisconsin and Oklahoma.

In 1794 the government amended the treaty by a clause which stated it was the original purpose of the government to provide that none of the land ceded in the treaty of 1784 could be sold except by the Six Nations as a unit. Indians therefore are attempting to recover the land alleged to have been illegally sold to New York state.

The Indians are being assisted in their fight by E. A. Everett, chairman of the New York state Indian commission. The fight will be carried to the New York state and Federal governments.

London Has Its Own Crime Wave

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Tragedy gripped London this week, when each day brought to light lurid details of ghastly deaths.

Here are a few of them:

London boy plays cowboy and plunges knife into heart.

Child of three found dead in a chest.

Fifteen year old boy hangs self on aged grandmother's bedpost. Grandmother blind, falls over corpse, fractures thigh and dies.

Nurse faints and drops two months old baby in fire, then, grief stricken, commits suicide by poison.

Ex-officer of Brighton shoots wife and self to defeat starvation.

Some men's minds are just like a pint of cider in a washtub—broad enough but not very deep.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE IN AN AIR FIRE

Captain Holden Tells of Escape from the C-2

By Captain Oliver F. Holden

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 18.—The army dirigible C-2 caught by a strong north wind, crashed against the door of the steel hangar at Brooks field and burned at 9:15 this morning. Eight or nine of the eleven members of the crew and passengers were injured and escaped death.

The crew of ground men, handling the balloon, all that were available for duty, were unable to hold the blimp. The car scraped against the ground and a crash was heard of splintering wood. Then the bag itself could be heard softly crumpling against the steel doors.

When the bag began to wilt the men, hanging on the guide ropes, cut loose and began to run, leaving the occupants of the car to shift for themselves. I was in the front compartment with Major Strauss and a newspaper man. The car at this moment was only four or five feet from the ground and I seized an occasion to jump, being the first.

The bag rose in the air, crowding against the doors and silk fabric hissing and escaping gas making a shrill sound. Major Strauss remained at his post, frantically giving commands in an effort to save his ship. The men in the rear compartment, which was covered over, were practically trapped.

The ship arose above the concrete weights of the tremendous sliding doors and settled on one of the weights. The passengers and crew began to jump.

All injuries were sustained when the occupants jumped out of the car, dropping 15 feet and falling on their backs, heads and sometimes their feet.

Gasoline was dripping from the smashed tank and its fumes, mixing with the hydrogen gas of the balloon apparently caused it to break into flames. It blazed suddenly with the effect of an explosion, the red tongues licking up 30 or 40 feet into the air where they merged into a rolling black cloud of smoke.

Sightseers who had gone out to see the flight, rushed to their motor cars to escape the conflagration. Others stayed to assist in saving the injured. Ambulances and motor cars rushed toward the hangar from all parts of the field. Somehow the frantic crowd managed to pass word from one to another that another accident had occurred just outside the field—that an airplane had fallen only a few hundred yards away. This news seemed to steady those in the crowd who were inclined to become panicky and they fell to helping the main body in the work of rescue and in futile efforts to put out the fire.

Millionaire's Son Working in Mill

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—A chip off the old block is Joseph Block, who is going to follow his father's footsteps.

Block, 22, the son of L. E. Block, millionaire chairman of the board of directors of the Inland Steel company, recently graduated from Cormal University.

He is now learning the steel business from the ground up.

For a month he was a member of the "puddlers gang" at the Inland Steel Company mill, at Chicago Heights. The "puddlers," by the way, have the hottest job in the mill. Stripped to the waist they direct the course of the huge billets of molten metal which come from the furnaces.

Block isn't going into the thing in a half-hearted way, either. He eats, lives and sleeps with his companions at the mill. He shares a room with a brother worker, carries a dinner pail and joins in the evening and morning march of the workers. He earns 35 cents an hour. Black is a favorite among the burly, muscular crew.

"The work is hard. To learn the business one must start at the bottom. You can't expect knowledge to be handed to you on a platter," Block said.

Block refused his parent's wish that he live at home and motor to and from the job.

"If I want to go home I'll use the street cars," he said.

THE MEASLES AND THE MARTYRDOM

I might have seen the Uncle Tom, but no,
I would not look because you could not go,
And when they had the street parade I thought
Of you in bed with measles burning hot
And closed my eyes so I could help to share
Your sufferings. And I am glad to bear
Some sorrow too, which only goes to show
How much we'll do for those we love, you know,
And Oh, the truest love that's ever known
Is such a sacrifice as I have shown.

It was a splendid show and I'd have cried
So Henry Bemis said, when Eva died,
And where I'm standing out in front I heard
The bloodhounds bark but never even stirred
When Henry Bemis asked me if I'd care
To stand up on his box and look from there
Into the window. And I might have stood
Up there and seen the whole show just as good
As if I am inside but I said: "She
Is sick in bed and I don't care to see!"

And Henry Bemis said such love is rare
As gold and precious jewels when you tear
Your heart right out as I did just to show
When you are sick and suffering, you know,
There's no joy in the world for me. I might
Have looked into the window every night
And you would never know. But how could I
Look afterward into your hollow eye
And know that when you're in such agony
I'd spent my nights in joy and revelry?

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HO, FOR THE HIGHER TARIFF!

The conference agreement on the tariff bill has been adopted by congress. It now becomes a law, and will go down into history as the Old Soak 'Em tariff. The manufacturers and the farmers get full protection, but the consumers will have to fight under the old rules of every man for himself.

Portland cement, paving posts, railroad ties, pig iron, shingles, ploughs, harrows, and horse racks are put on the free list. This will be good news to people who wear them.

Sulphide of arsenic, cacao beans, borax, jodine, whale oil, asphalt, antitoxins and serums will also be admitted free. Not so bad for the Ultimate Consumer, if he has that kind of an appetite. A little chipped asphalt smothered in whale oil makes an excellent breakfast dish. What could be sweetter than a luncheon of borax garnished with iodine? Who would hesitate to wind up such a day with a dinner of arsenic and cacao beans?

Ploughs, elephant tusks, barrel staves, hoops, and horsehair, congress has decided, shall be on the free list, too. Clever politics, this. You can do most anything to an American citizen, but as long as you see that he gets a plough, elephant tusk, hoop, barrel stave, and a bunch of horsehair now and then he will be tickled to death.

And, oh, popper, look! Ice is to be admitted without duty, too! It is understood there was serious discussion among congressmen whether they should let ice in free or not, but after reading the weather prophecies and the coal strike news it was decided they could do nothing to stop it.

And there's brick. That's free, the conferees having decided on this to avoid complications with Ireland. This decision entitles every citizen to a brick. An apple a day keeps the doctor away, but a brick a day, keeps the butcher, baker, landlord, and instalment house collector away.

Abouf everything else, however, will come in under a higher tariff. Sheep, goats, hogs, milk, cream, eggs, fish, noodles, cattle and clothing materials will be admitted only under higher duties. To make it impossible for any American to complain of the high cost of living the duty on hay will remain unchanged at $4 a ton.

The Old Guard, as the slogan goes, may die, but it never reduces!

The 100 per cent. American shave gets a great boost through the jumping of duties on imported razors and razor blades to unprecedented heights. The tariff calls for a duty of 10 cents each on razors valued at not more than "$2 a dozen and a duty of 10 cents each and 30 per cent ad valorem on all safety razors valued at not less than $2 a dozen."

Hair brushes, scissors, clipping machines, and soap rates are raised also. Congress seems determined that the United States shall get a haircut, shave and massage without any entangling alliances with Europe.

Brazil nuts are taken off the free list for the first time in years. Nuts from Russia and other Soviet communities will be allowed admission if they pass the usual literacy tests, and those from England will not only be admitted free but paid handsomely at so much per lecture.

Duties on shotguns, rifles and revolvers are jacked afar, but at last reports the American gunmen were oversupplied, anyhow, and will not protest to congress or the President.

The duty on hairpins remains unchanged. This is obviously a bid for the women's vote.

Duties on shoes for human beings are raised, but those on horseshoes are reduced. It is all a matter of finding horseshoes small enough for the baby to wear.

But there is some consolation. Playing cards, dice, dominoes, and poker chips will come in at the same old rates and the rate on umbrellas has been cut from 50 to 40 per cent. Rain and snow will be admitted free.

And rope remains on the free list so that all who wish may swing.

CONDUCTOR, OLD FRIEND OF ROOSEVELT'S, IS OPPONENT OF MILLIONAIRE CANDIDATE

"There is only $9,000,000 difference between me and my opponent," said Bob Ludlam, Long Island railroad conductor, as he swung off his train at Oyster Bay, the home of the late Colonel Roosevelt. He is the regular democratic candidate for the New York state assembly from the Second district of Nassau county. His opponent at the polls is Trubee Davison, son of the late Henry P. Davison of the J. P. Morgan company. Robert J. Ludlam has been a conductor of the Oyster Bay branch of the Long Island system for thirty years. Among the regulars on his run have been many notables, and Colonel Roosevelt was a personal friend.

GIANTS BASEBALL'S GREATEST TEAM

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—No team ever rose to the heights of perfection attained by the New York Giants in winning the world's series from the Yankees.

Constituted as they are today, the Giants perhaps are the greatest team ever assembled. They are at least as good as any team of former years and their class above all other major league teams today is far beyond dispute.

In the series they made the American league champions look almost like bushers and it must not be misunderstood that the Yankees are a good ball club. They had to have some class to win the American league pennant, because that is no inferior circuit.

* * * * * *

Many of the tricks and traps conceived by McGraw, Jennings, Robinson and Gleason when they were making famous the name of the old Baltimore Orioles were sprung to perfection on the Yankees.

Twice victories were turned in by the trick of having an infielder intercept a throw from the outfield and cut down a run at the plate.

In the fourth game Bancroft ran into short centerfield and took a throw, whipping the ball to the plate, retiring Schang, who tried for the plate.

In the last game Frisch ran into right field, took Young's short throw and tossed to the plate, getting Scott, who made the attempt to score when he thought the play was to be made at second base.

* * * * * *

The outfield work of the Giants was spectacular and critics agreed that it surpassed the marks set by Hooper, Speaker and Lewis, who were on the books as the greatest of all world's series outfields when they were starring with the Boston Red Sox.

They did not make as many spectacular catches simply because they didn't get the chances. The throwing of Meusel, Cunningham and Young, their hitting and more especially their brain work, was beautiful to watch.

* * * * * *

Before the series it was predicted that on account of the supposed weakness of the Giant pitching staff, McGraw's only chance to win the championship rested in hitting and base running, and it was the strength of the National League champions in those two lines that were mainly responsible for the victory.

The base running of the Giants and their batting in the pinches certainly would have won even if the pitchers had been less effective.

Reason for the surprising form shown by the Giant pitchers against the Yanks can be explained best perhaps in the words of a former major league manager and a close friend of McGraw's:

"Any pitcher of more than ordinary ability who has control and who follows the instructions of McGraw can win ball games."

While no particular wreath of laurels was placed on his brow, "Irish" Meusel certainly was one of the big heroes of the series. He proved himself to be one of the most dangerous hitters in baseball when a hit was needed.

Many fine batting averages are made by hits with none on or with two down when the pitcher is careless, but a player who bats only .200 and gets his hits when there are runs on the bases is a better hitter.

Elinor Glyn Won't Play Here Any More

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Elinor Glyn will not return to America until she can be her own motion picture director and "boss her own show."

This was her announcement in a letter to Abraham Lehr, Culver City producer.

Miss Glyn, who is in Paris, has just completed directing a picture of her photoplay, "Six Days." Captain Fonck, famous French flying ace, appeared in one of its scenes.
